always in our hearts.*

Online Tributes and Funeral Details

We all have a strong desire to remember those we love and this is expressed in any number of ways – anniversary notices in newspapers and, of course, the headstones erected at gravesites.

Gippsland Funeral Services has developed another way, in a format easily shared by others, to help hold the memory of those departed. We provide space for online memorials on our website www.gippslandfuneralservices.com.au

The memorials usually contain information about the loved one, such as a photo and text provided by the family.

There is no charge for these online memorials for funerals attended to by Gippsland Funeral Services, no matter how long ago they took place, although there is a reasonable limit on the size of the free memorial.

Funeral Details

Another really good use of the internet is providing funeral details through an on-line listing of current funerals.

Details of all of the funeral services we conduct, except in the case of private funerals, are automatically uploaded to our website under the Current Funeral List which also includes a Google Map Reference to the location of the funeral. We have found this is often of great assistance for those travelling to but unsure of the funeral location.

With the Current Funeral List updated immediately, funeral details are available well before they are published in the Melbourne or local papers.

The unfortunate fact is that from time to time we hear from people who did not attend a funeral because they missed the notices in the papers. We have found that publishing online as well as in our office windows and in the press helps friends and family access the funeral details.

Private funerals are either not listed or listed without any specific details, according to the family wishes. For example, the listing could say, "A private funeral service has been arranged for Mr John Citizen," which lets others know the funeral is occurring but also that the family wants their ceremony to remain private.

Ever since we started this service, the number of people accessing the list has been increasing monthly and we find it is another way to assist family and friends with relevant and up to date information. There is no charge for the online listings for our client families.
